WILL PRESIDENT AID.

Republicans Expect and Hope He Will Get Into New York Contest.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—No purely state campaign in many years has been of so great interest to a national administration as that now being waged in New York is to the Roosevelt administration.

President Roosevelt has said many times that he would not permit himself to be drawn into local political contests and he consistently has adhered to that policy; but in this particular contest the conditions are different from those of ordinary state campaigns.

It can be stated that all the power of the national administration will be exerted in New York in support of the candidacy of Charles E. Hughes, the republican candidate for governor, as against William R. Hearst, the democratic and Independent league candidate.

The campaign in the Empire state will be conducted along national lines. In all of the campaigns for congress throughout the country the republicans are relying on the personality of President Roosevelt, and the policy of the Roosevelt administration to cut an important figure, and the same argument will be employed in the New York state campaign.

No doubt exists that the administration is apprehensive of the situation in New York. In ordinary circumstances, it is realized that Mr. Hearst would have practically a certainty of winning, but it is hoped to offset his personal popularity with the masses of the people by a strong appeal based on purely national issues. It is felt by the republicans that the success of Mr. Hearst in New York would be a serious blow to the national prestige of the republican party and it must be averted if possible.

"It is perfectly evident that the country is in the throes of excitement over evils that have created general complaint," said an important official of the national administration. "The people are determined to eradicate these evils, if possible, and they are likely to follow Mr. Hearst, in the belief that he may be the Moses to lead them out of what appears to be a wilderness of corruption. They know, however, that President Roosevelt has done and is doing to expose corruption and to enforce the laws respecting corporations and their belief in him will be a great factor in the campaigns throughout the country."

"At no distant time, it is quite certain the president will take vigorous action in the New York contest. That his action will count goes without saying. His strength not only in New York, but throughout the country, has been proved and his influence will be of the greatest weight."

It is certain that the Roosevelt administration is taking nothing for granted in the New York campaign. It is realized fully that the republicans have their work cut out for them in that state, and strenuous methods will be adopted in the campaign. It is evident that Mr. Hearst will make one of the hottest contests ever conducted in New York. It is with this knowledge, that the national administration proposes to make its influence felt.

Mr. Hearst's campaign for the mayoralty of New York opened the eyes of political observers throughout the country and President Roosevelt and his advisers were not slow to grasp the facts developed then. Already the president has discussed the situation with members of his cabinet and with prominent republicans in New York and decisive action may be expected in a short time by the president.
